Gen. Walker, with four hundred men, attacked the allies at St. George, and gained the Plaza and burned an important part of the town, and then retreated to Rivas, which Gen. Chamoro, at the head of 1,200 men, had, in the meantime attacked, and been driven back with great slaughter by Gen. Henningsen. General Walker met thein retreating, and they were consequently placed between two fires, and, become pletely paralyzed, suffered immensely. The allies' loss, by their own account, amoun ed to three hundred and twenty-seven killed, and over three hundred wounded-while Walker estimates their loss at six hundred killed and

The Union publishes the correspondence between Lord Napier, the Earl of Clarendon, and Mr. Cass, relative to the rescue of a great part of the British bark Tasso (wrecked at Barneat) by the crew of an American life-boat.
Mr. Fowler, neting Vice Consul at New York, is been instructed to convey to the widow of John Jones, one of the boatmen who perished in the rescue, a donation of fifty dollars as a ark of sympathy from the British Government. A subscription had also resulted in the collecon of a sum sufficient for the purchase of a mall house and furm. Mr. Fowler has also been making inquiries respecting the relatives of John Parker, another boatmen who lost his life, and the rest of ae boatmen who shared in the same danger. The Earl of Clarendon instructs Lord Na-ier to express, in the warmest terms, the rinks of the British Government for the mely assistance rendered, and expresses his ration of the courage and devotion of the American boatmen. Mr. Cass's letter to Lord Napier says: "It is always a source of gratification to this Government, when the citizens of the United States re instrumental in rescuing individuals, espeially citizens and subjects of foreign countries, om the perils of the sea, and the manifestaion of sympathy and gratitude on the part of Her Majesty's Government, in this instance, is ustly appreciated by the President."
